DETAILED ACTION

This Office Action is in response to applicant's communication on 10/4/2006.
Currently elected claims 1-9 are pending and stand rejected below.

Election/Restrictions

Applicant's election without traverse of claims 1-9 in the reply filed on 10/4/2006 is acknowledged.

Claims 10-13 are withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b) as being drawn to a nonelected apparatus, there being no allowable generic or linking claim. Election was made without traverse in the reply filed on 10/4/2006.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Warier et al. (U.S. Patent Number 7,138,088). Warier discloses and teaches a method for a direct contact measurement to detect access disconnection such as dislodgement of an access device from the patient through which fluid can flow during medication delivery therapy. Further Warier teaches a method of delivering a drug into a patients body through a patient's skin (as in figure 1C) with an injection device (device from 68,64,66,70, to 56), forming an electrical circuit between the patients body and the injection device (as shown in figure 1c and arrow), providing an electric impedance monitor (such as element at 74) and measuring the electrical impedance between the patients body and the injection device, delivering the drug (fig. 1c), and detecting the change in impedance during the delivery of the drug into the patients body (specifically see Warior paragraphs at column 10-12), further causing a audible and/or visual signal that indicates the change in the electric circuit impedance (see column 17 line 22).

Warior discloses the claimed invention except for using a jet injection device as an injection device. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use a jet injection device as an injection device since it was known in the art that providing an injection by a jet form is one type hypodermic injection. It is examiners position that it would be implicit in Warior that a jet type of injection is encompassed in the term access device or injection device and if not implicit an obvious variation thereof. It would be obvious to modify the injection device, (in the fig 1c a needle) with a jet injector since this would provide an alternate equivalent mode of delivering fluid to a patient.
